Client Overview

George Brown College is one of Canada's largest, most diversified and highly respected colleges, serving a broad and vibrant student body with a program mix of apprenticeship training, certificates, diplomas and degrees. Drawing from its close relationships with industry, George Brown College creates and continually enhances relevant programs and curriculum to serve the needs of both students and employers by producing workplace-ready graduates who are highly sought after.

Client Objectives

George Brown College runs several key applications to support their varied programs, operations and student web sites. Among these are SCT Banner, their core application running financials, human resources and student records, and their student registration web portal. The college needs to keep these systems up to date, and add functionality in order to better serve the staff and students. George Brown College needed specialized skills and additional resources to enable these efforts.

Procase Contribution

Procase has provided individual resources with specialized skills, as well as entire teams that fit seamlessly into George Brown's information technology group to help them achieve their ambitious goals. The Procase team provided in-depth Oracle skills underlying the Banner upgrade. The Procase team has conducted impact analysis as well as defined the migration solution. Procase has also developed the migration code to migrate previous customizations and historical data. Procase also organized quality assurance planning and testing that was crucial to delivery of working systems within tight deadlines that are designed to meet George Brown's annual schedules.

Procase was also instrumental in the launch of new functionality for the on-line student registration portal. Procase provided business analysis, design development and quality assurance skills, and delivered a working system, on-time and on-budget.
