Client Objectives

Learning Tree looks for high quality technology expertise to help them develop and deliver technology courses.

Proc case Contribution

Learning Tree first contracted Proc case to provide quality assurance for Oracle courses. Two months prior to the scheduled production date, Learning Tree asked Proc case to re-develop a course that had failed its Beta release. Proc case met the challenge by developing the course in one third of the normal development time while achieving grades in the top two percentile.

Based on this experience, Proc case was chosen as Learning Tree's leading developer of Oracle courses. Since then, Proc case has developed more than ten instructor-led courses which have been taught by Proc case and Learning Tree instructors to thousands of students.

In September 1996, Learning Tree commissioned Proc case to develop a comprehensive Oracle computer based training (CBT) curriculum. This project posed a unique management challenge of coordinating a team that was spread across three locations. In spite of these challenges, Proc case delivered on time.

Proc case has developed a long term relationship with the Learning Tree international and a team of Proc case trainers continues to deliver courses North America wide at Learning tree as well as customer facilities.
